

Judging Criteria for uniques special ones

uniques special ones sets a first by adopting an innovative method of judging: each car is judged by not one, but two separate teams of judges.

The first team is composed of restorers, historians and experts with knowledge of a specific marque, model, or period in history. They assess the originality and condition of preserved cars, or the quality of the restoration of restored cars.

The second team appraises cars purely on their aesthetic merits.

For each class, three prizes are awarded: one for restoration/originality, one for style, and the Overall Class winner, combining the two evaluations. In some classes a single car can receive all three prizes, while in others two or three different cars may share the awards. The public thus understands more clearly how different criteria can be applied in judging classic cars.

The Best of Show is chosen from the Overall Class winners, also taking into consideration the uniqueness of the car.
