Alan Mann's cars were in a class of their own at the 6 hour race: they finished 1-2, two laps in front of the works Mercedes team - their days seemed to be over now. The giant Galaxie of Baillie did take the lead after 29 laps, but rain showers made things pretty difficult for the heavy American beast; in the end, they finished 6th overall and took the class win, still a creditable performance.

The leading Cortinas had to pit a few times to fix the rear axle and were overheating towards the end of the race - Whitmore said after the race that the cars wouldn't have lasted another 15 minutes...

Behind the Mercedes in fifth was the Lancia Flavia of Cella and Crosina, but where were the Mini's? They ran into lots of trouble. Slotemaker/Rhodes had to have their radiator repaired twice, Hopkirk/Vernaev (5th after practice!) retired early, the Broadspeed Mini of Broad/Handley finally winning the class.
