

"SA SCAGLIETTI CHE FUI IO A SPINGERE MIO PADRE A INCONTRARSI CON FERRARI? QUEI DUE ERANO TIPI TOSTI, NON LI SMUOVEVA NESSUNO."

Sergio Pininfarina

"Did you know, Scaglietti, I was the one who persuaded my father to meet Ferrari? The two of them were so stubborn, neither was prepared to make the first move."

Scaglietti reveals eyes that glisten with real feeling. Pininfarina's face is wreathed in a beautiful smile across which a thousand memories jostle like balls on a pinball machine. They're here for a quick photocall, but what comes out is a whole lava flow of fabulous memories.

"I well remember the time I first met you my dear sir. The new graduate, and a very young one too, washing the car your father had given you."

"Yes, indeed, I was young. I couldn't wait to get shot of my schooling."

It's amazing. They've just got together and they're already remembering events of half a century ago. What else? Behind them the ultra-modern wind tunnel puts the date irrevocably in the 21st century, but what these two scent in the air around them is the spirit of the Old Man who forged the bond that united the best years of their lives.
