ALFA WEST OPEN HOUSE REPORT

If you didn't stop by Alfa West's open house on Saturday January 27th, you missed a good time. Dale Macowan (owner of Alfa West) is quickly becoming known as the "party guy". Dale welcomed his guests with a table full of food and a cooler full of drinks, but that wasn't the good stuff. All throughout his shop were tables of parts and goodies. Some old, some new and most all were hard to find or wanted by many. True to his word, all the parts were priced very nicely and most people had a little something to play with as they left for home.
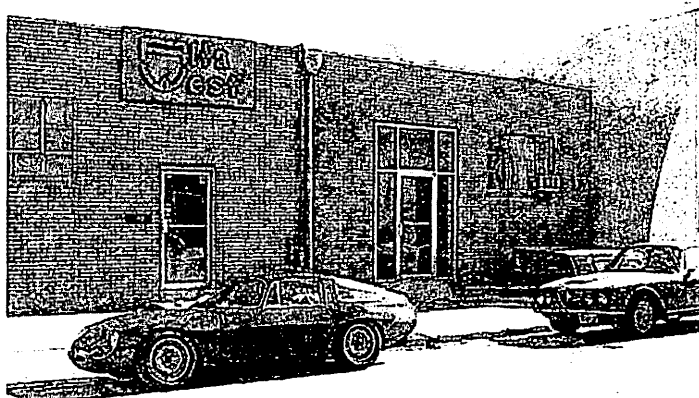

The remodeling project that has been underway over the past year is looking almost complete and I found the couch to be very comfortable as I sat and watched the Alfa related videos that were playing on the TV. Dale also showed his slide show presentation of his tour of the Alfa factory production line and museum in 1965 and '66 that makes you wish you had a time machine and a pocket full of cash.

The party lasted from 10:30 until around 4:00 but most people went home after the snow started. That was fortunate for me as that left a little extra time to talk about racecar preparation with Dale.

If you didn't get a chance to stop by there are still a few parts left but all the foods gone. You can stop by and visit Dale at 3778 South Kalamath Street in Englewood, or give him a call at 303-789-9378.

⇦ Checking out the literature table at the Alfa West Open House.

SPECIAL POINTS OF INTEREST:

- Read part 1 of a 3 part story about the Alfa Romeo BAT cars on page 6.

- ACOC Tech Session coming up on Saturday the 17th of March. More details on page 2.

- ACOC Indoor Go-Kart Challenge details inside on page 4, plus a registration form.